Why should young people care about Healthcare Reform? On October 23rd the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate & Professional Student Assembly (GPSA) and the Pittsburgh Urban Magnet Project (PUMP) will host an educational forum giving people of all ages a chance to be part of this controversial conversation.

This event will afford attendees an inside-the-beltway view of this pressing national and international issue. Participants will have the opportunity to ask these key legislators questions while critically assessing ways to relieve the problems in our national healthcare system as legislation nears completion in Congress.
